

Boxing

This article is part of a series produced by the British Council to help you learn English and learn about different Olympic and Paralympic sports.

What do you know about boxing, past and present? Learn the rules and find out more.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Boxing? That's not really a sport, is it? It's just two guys fighting. If they did that in the street they'd be arrested, wouldn't they?
Not just two guys.

What do you mean? Boxing matches sometimes have more than two guys?
No, I mean not just guys. Women's boxing is included for the first time in the programme for London 2012.

Really? I didn't know that.
No? Well, anyway, it's been an Olympic sport since 1904, and was also one of the sports in the ancient Olympics.

Wasn't Hercules in the ancient Olympics? You wouldn't want to have to fight him, would you?
Hmm... Hercules was actually a myth, and a Roman myth! Though his name did come from the Greek 'Heracles'. Maybe you're thinking of Diagoras?

Who?
Diagoras of Rhodes. He was probably the most famous boxer in the history of the ancient Olympics. He won twice and all three of his sons were also Olympic champions. There's even a football club and an airport named after him.

Never heard of him, but that's impressive. There's nobody like that in the modern Olympics, is there?
Well, some pretty tough guys have also competed at the modern Olympics.

Yeah? Like who?
Cassius Clay (later called Muhammad Ali), George Foreman, Oscar de la Hoya and Lennox Lewis, just to name four.

Ah, so it's a good thing to put on your CV if you want to become professional?
Indeed. But not all Olympic boxing champions become professionals.

Really, like who?
Well, Teofilo Stevenson, for example. He was from Cuba and was Olympic heavyweight champion three times. He was offered a million dollars to fight Muhammad Ali, but he refused, saying, 'What is one million dollars compared to the love of eight million Cubans?'

I see. So he spent his life getting punched but was much loved for it?
That's right, though I don't think he got punched very often!

ACTIVITY

Decide if the following statements about the text are true or false.

	True	False
1. Until now only men have competed in the Olympic boxing programme.
2. Hercules competed in the ancient Olympics.
3. There's a football club and an airport both called 'Diagoras'.
4. You must win an Olympic boxing medal to become a professional boxer.
5. Teofilo Stevenson thought there were more important things than money.
6. Teofilo Stevenson was a very good boxer.

RULES FOR BOXING

- Boxing is a sport where two athletes (male or female) fight each other in an area called a ring.
- The ring is square with posts in each corner which are connected by four ropes.
- The fight is divided into three periods of three minutes each. These are called rounds.
- At the end of each round each boxer goes back to his corner to rest for one minute.
- The fighters wear gloves, a protective headguard and a mouthpiece (or gum shield) to protect their teeth. They must punch each other on the head or body.
- Each valid punch scores one point. There are five judges.
- There is a referee who checks that the boxers obey the rules.
- A fighter wins if he has more points than his opponent at the end of the fight, or if he knocks him out.
- The referee can stop the fight at any time if he thinks one boxer is not able to continue.

WORDSEARCH

Q	H	E	A	D	G	U	A	R	D
X	C	R	O	P	E	O	D	G	C
K	I	O	X	B	Z	Q	I	L	X
R	R	H	R	G	L	M	F	O	D
C	V	B	Y	N	D	X	O	V	U
Q	C	R	E	F	E	R	E	E	Q
J	P	U	N	C	H	R	J	S	U
R	I	N	G	G	J	I	V	Y	D
M	O	U	T	H	P	I	E	C	E
T	H	E	C	E	Q	Y	B	Q	H

Find these words in the grid

headguard
gloves corner rope

ring punch
mouthpiece
referee